Corporate Membership: Make a Contribution to the Future of Our Industry

Formed in 2003, NAWM was started by a small group of women devoted to enhancing the role women play in architecture, construction, engineering and all of the professions related to the building industry. Furthermore, NAWM was created to focus on expanding training and education for its members and anyone who has an interest in masonry. As our mission statement makes clear, "NAWM strives to create an environment through education, training, and networking that enhances the leadership skills of women in the building industry."

As a new organization, we need the assistance of donors to develop these types of valuable learning opportunities. In the coming year, we hope to begin a lecture series and host a major fundraising event to contribute to our operating budget and begin a scholarship program. We are continuing to supplement the large amount of publicity we have received in nationwide publications with focused membership campaigns. Our creative and informative quarterly newsletter, NAWM Focus, has a nationwide readership. Your membership will show your support for NAWM and bring your business or product to a new audience.

Several levels of membership are offered. These are described below:
